Political Science

Chair: Todd Lochner
Administrative Coordinator: Claire Kodachi

Political scientists examine the theory and practice of government, law, and politics within the history of political ideas and philosophy, as well as within the context of contemporary political practices. They use the tools and methods of the social sciences to seek knowledge of political institutions and processes, and to learn how to think critically about public policies and their consequences. Political scientists attempt to evaluate how behavior (individual, group, and mass) affects political institutions, and how institutions shape and constrain political choices.

Because of their understanding and interest in political systems, students who earn degrees in political science often enter such career fields as government service, law, journalism, politics, public policy analysis, and education. Knowledge about politics often extends into other spheres, as graduates also pursue careers in medicine, business, and finance.

Resources for Nonmajors

Since political science is intrinsic to a liberal arts education, the department makes its courses open to all students. Political science courses guide students in using the discipline’s resources and in developing descriptive, analytical, evaluative, and communicative skills needed by participants in a liberal democracy. Two courses are entrées to the field: Introduction to Comparative Politics (POLS 102) and U.S. Government: National Politics (POLS 103).

The Major Program

The political science curriculum is organized around five fields: American government, comparative politics, political theory, public law, and methodology. Courses are offered in American government and comparative politics at the introductory and advanced levels. Courses in public law, political theory, and methodology are normally taken only after students have completed introductory courses. The major culminates with a capstone course (which may take the form of a senior thesis by invitation). Capstone courses are advanced 400-level courses, usually specialized in their focus, that require intensive class discussion and a significant research paper. Note that a senior thesis is required for students seeking departmental honors.

Political science majors can pursue independent study under individual faculty supervision, including practical applications and experiences such as internships with elected officials, interest groups, and government agencies. The department’s semester of study in Washington, D.C., one of the more distinguished programs of its kind in the country, includes class meetings with some of America’s most influential politicians and decision makers, combined with a rigorous curriculum of in-class instruction.

The political science department uses local and regional resources, including visits to the Oregon state legislature in Salem and to county and city political offices in the Portland metropolitan area. Other resources include numerous governmental agencies in the Portland area, interest groups, and political movements.

The political science curriculum is organized into the following concentrations:

American Government and Institutions
- POLS 102 Introduction to Comparative Politics
- POLS 103 U.S. Government: National Politics
- POLS 275 Gender and Politics
- POLS 302 Political Parties and Interest Groups
- POLS 307 Government and the Economy
- POLS 350 Congressional Politics
- POLS 351 Presidential Politics
- POLS 353 The National Policy Process
- POLS 359 Religion and Politics
- POLS 410 Law, Politics, and Society

Comparative Politics
- POLS 102 Introduction to Comparative Politics
- POLS 265 European Politics
- POLS 322 Ethnicity and Nationalism
- POLS 354 Comparative Electoral Politics
- POLS 435 Topics in Comparative Politics

Political Theory
- POLS 309 American Political Thought
- POLS 310 Pillars of Western Political Thought: Plato to Machiavelli
- POLS 311 Pillars of Western Political Thought: Hobbes to Foucault
- POLS 313 International Political Theory
- POLS 316 Ethics and Public Policy
- POLS 402 Problems in Political Theory

Public Law
- POLS 301 American Constitutional Law: Equal Protection and Due Process
- POLS 305 American Constitutional Law: Civil Liberties
- POLS 425 Legal Regulation of American Democracy

Methodology and Thesis
- POLS 201 Research Methods in Political Science
- POLS 252 Public Opinion and Survey Research
- POLS 400 Senior Thesis

Major Requirements

A minimum of 44 semester credits (11 courses), distributed as follows:
- POLS 102 Introduction to Comparative Politics
- POLS 103 U.S. Government: National Politics
- POLS 201 Research Methods in Political Science or IA 200 Research Methods for International Affairs
• POLS 301 American Constitutional Law: Equal Protection and Due Process or POLS 305 American Constitutional Law: Civil Liberties

• POLS 310 Pillars of Western Political Thought: Plato to Machiavelli or POLS 311 Pillars of Western Political Thought: Hobbes to Foucault

• One 200-, 300-, or 400-level course in comparative politics or one of the following international affairs courses:

  IA 232 Southeast Asian Politics
  IA 290 Middle East Politics
  IA 320 Democratization

• One additional 300- or 400-level theory course

• One 300- or 400-level American government and institutions course

• One 400-level course chosen from the following:

  POLS 400 Senior Thesis
  POLS 402 Problems in Political Theory
  POLS 410 Law, Politics, and Society
  POLS 425 Legal Regulation of American Democracy
  POLS 435 Topics in Comparative Politics

This course may be used simultaneously to fulfill one of the categories above, in which case students must take another elective at the 300 level or higher in the department to reach 11 courses.

• IA 100 Introduction to International Relations

• ECON 100 Principles of Economics

For all majors, courses in European and U.S. history, macroeconomics, and international political economy, as well as a semester in Washington, D.C., are recommended. Majors planning to attend law school should add courses in English literature, philosophy (including logic), mathematics, and history. Majors planning to attend graduate school in political science should take courses in mathematics, statistics, and other social sciences. Majors planning a career in politics, public policy, or urban planning should add courses in statistics, communication, economics, and psychology.

Minor Requirements

A minimum of 20 semester credits (five courses), distributed as follows:

• POLS 102 Introduction to Comparative Politics

• POLS 103 U.S. Government: National Politics

• POLS 310 Pillars of Western Political Thought: Plato to Machiavelli or POLS 311 Pillars of Western Political Thought: Hobbes to Foucault

• One course in American government and institutions

• One course in public law

Honors and Senior Thesis

In the spring semester, juniors who have achieved a GPA of 3.00 or higher in the major and overall are invited to apply to the department for placement in POLS 400. Students who fall below a 3.00 GPA may be granted an exception to apply on a case-by-case basis. Majors who have achieved a GPA of 3.500 or higher in the major and overall may be considered for honors. After the student completes and formally presents the thesis, the political science faculty determine whether to grant honors upon graduation.

Faculty

POLS 102 Introduction to Comparative Politics

Faculty: Wendt.

Content: Introduction to the central questions in comparative politics. Fundamental differences in the organization of states, democratic political institutions (presidentialism versus parliamentarianism, for example), and domestic social forces (for example, social capital, ethnic versus nonethnic identities). The impact of political organization on economic performance and social peace.

Prerequisites: None.

Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.

Semester credits: 4.
POLS 103 U.S. Government: National Politics
Faculty: Lochner.
Content: The politics of the founding period; interactions within and among the executive, legislative, and judicial branches; the federal division of institutionalized powers; public opinion, interest groups, and political parties; the policy process in areas such as defense, welfare, civil rights and liberties, and international affairs.
Prerequisites: None.
Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 201 Research Methods in Political Science
Faculty: Wendt.
Content: Introduction to the methodological principles and issues in political science research, using readings within and beyond political science. Identifying variables and mechanisms, developing and testing theories, collecting and measuring data, and assessing a study’s ability to achieve causal inference. Introduction to different approaches to research, including experiments, case studies, and regression analysis. Recommended for sophomores or juniors.
Prerequisites: POLS 102 or POLS 103.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required, unless section number is preceded by an "F."
Usually offered: Annually, fall semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 244 Practicum
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: Opportunities for well-prepared students to put academic concepts and techniques to work in the marketplace. Specific activities vary; usually involve work with a public agency or private group. Credit-no credit. May be repeated for credit.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Considerable preparation before enrollment. Consult instructor and obtain the department’s instructions about the program well in advance. Sophomore standing required.
Usually offered: Annually.
Semester credits: 2-4.

POLS 252 Public Opinion and Survey Research
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: The role of public opinion in the American political process; the problem of identifying the public and the extent to which this public exercises political authority; techniques of researching public opinion. Political socialization, formation of attitudes, group differences, mass opinion, elite opinion, direct action. Research design, data collection, scaling, analysis, and interpretation of data in the context of research on polling.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required, unless section number is preceded by an "F."
Usually offered: Every third year, fall semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 265 European Politics
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: The domestic political development of modern Europe, with a focus on the 19th-21st centuries. Covers the emergence of nation-states, parliamentary democracies, and welfare states; the varied responses to domestic challenges over the past 150 years (from mass unrest and the great depression to globalization and immigration); and the integration of Europe into a "union." Approaches Europe through the lens of individual countries and as "western" and "eastern" subregions.
Prerequisites: POLS 102.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required, unless section number is preceded by an "F."
Usually offered: Alternate Years, spring semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 275 Gender and Politics
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: Use of comparative and historical perspective to understand women as political actors. Notions of power, change, participation, politics. The suffrage struggle and the political situation in eastern and western Europe.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required, unless section number is preceded by an "F."
Usually offered: Every third year, spring semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 299 Independent Study
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: Opportunities for well-prepared students to design and pursue a substantive course of independent learning. Details determined by the student and the supervising instructor. Credit-no credit. May be repeated for credit.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing and consent required.
Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.
Semester credits: 2-4.
POLS 301 American Constitutional Law: Equal Protection and Due Process
Faculty: Lochner.
Content: The U.S. Supreme Court and judicial review from 1787 to the present. The court's landmark constitutional decisions, as well as the theory and techniques of constitutional interpretation. The court's authority within the wider political and social context of American government, with emphasis on the court's jurisprudence in the areas of equal protection (including segregation and desegregation, affirmative action, gender discrimination, and sexual orientation discrimination) and due process (including privacy and abortion rights). Discussions of actual Supreme Court rulings, majority opinions, and dissenting arguments, as well as the political and historical context of those decisions in an effort to understand how and why the Supreme Court has played such an influential role in American politics and political thought.
Prerequisites: POLS 103.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required.
Usually offered: Annually, fall semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 302 Political Parties and Interest Groups
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: The structure and functioning of political parties from the local to the national level; organization, staffing, and policy development of parties. Pluralist analysis, group theory, impact of interest group activity on the American political system.
Prerequisites: POLS 103.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required.
Usually offered: Every third year.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 303 Political Parties and Interest Groups
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: The structure and functioning of political parties from the local to the national level; organization, staffing, and policy development of parties. Pluralist analysis, group theory, impact of interest group activity on the American political system.
Prerequisites: POLS 103.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required.
Usually offered: Every third year.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 305 American Constitutional Law: Civil Liberties
Faculty: Lochner.
Content: Focus on the First Amendment, particularly free speech (including areas of national security, incitement to lawless action, individual and group defamation, indecency, and obscenity), as well as criminal defendants' rights (including Fourth Amendment search and seizure law, Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination, and Eighth Amendment prohibitions against cruel and unusual punishment in the context of the death penalty). Discussions of actual Supreme Court rulings, majority opinions, and dissenting arguments, as well as the political and historical context of those decisions in an effort to understand how and why the Supreme Court has played such an influential role in American politics and political thought.
Prerequisites: POLS 103.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required.
Usually offered: Annually, spring semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 307 Government and the Economy
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: A framework for analysis of the policy-making process. History, dynamics, and trends of major U.S. economic policies. The scope of American domestic policy; subsidies and aids to business, labor, agriculture, consumers; antitrust policy and the Federal Trade Commission; public-utility regulation; natural-resources policies; full employment; antipoverty and defense spending.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required.

Semester credits: 4.

POLS 400 Senior Thesis
Content: Choosing a definitive topic and narrowing it; developing a research design, doing the research, submitting drafts, revising drafts, polishing final copy. Presenting thesis to political science faculty and seniors for critique, rewrite of thesis. Final form due at end of semester. Normally taken for 2 credits in both fall and spring semesters of senior year for a total of 4 credits.
Prerequisites: POLS 102, POLS 103, and POLS 201.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing required.
Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.
Semester credits: 2-4.

POLS 402 Problems in Political Theory
Faculty: Holzwarth, Johnson.
Content: Advanced analysis of a specific problem, theme, or concept intriguing to political theorists. Specific content varies. Themes have included revolution, utopia, the American founding, Nietzsche, identity and self-creation, and the philosophy of history.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Junior standing required. Open to sophomores with consent of instructor only.
Usually offered: Alternate Years.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 410 Law, Politics, and Society
Faculty: Lochner.
Content: The role of law and legal institutions in the American political system. Examination of institutional actors, such as lawyers, judges, and juries, as well as an examination of discrete case studies, such as "mass torts," environmental litigation, and criminal justice policy. What features define the American legal system; how does this system compare to the legal systems of other countries; what are its respective advantages and disadvantages? This course serves to meet the capstone requirement of the Department of Political Science.
Prerequisites: POLS 103.
Restrictions: Junior standing or consent required.
Usually offered: Alternate Years.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 425 Legal Regulation of American Democracy
Faculty: Lochner.
Content: The legal regulation of the American political system. The equal protection concept of voting rights, particularly the "One Person, One Vote" rule and the Voting Rights Act, and federal campaign-finance regulation. Additional topics include the constitutional rights of political parties and the law relating to ballot propositions. Discussion of descriptive and normative issues. This course is taught at the law school.
Prerequisites: POLS 301.
Restrictions: Junior standing or consent required.
Usually offered: Annually, spring semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 435 Topics in Comparative Politics
Faculty: Wendt.
Content: Advanced seminar focusing on problems and concepts in comparative politics. Specific content varies; examples of topics include state failure and civil war, electoral competition and legislative behavior, migration and integration, institutional design, and ethnicity and nationalism. Assignments are organized around a substantial seminar paper (25 pages or longer)
Prerequisites: POLS 102.
Restrictions: Senior standing or consent required.
Usually offered: Every third year, spring semester.
Semester credits: 4.

POLS 444 Practicum
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: Same as POLS 244 but requiring more advanced work. May be repeated for credit.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing and consent required.
Usually offered: Annually.
Semester credits: 2-4.
POLS 499 Independent Study
Faculty: Political Science Faculty.
Content: Same as POLS 299 but requiring more advanced work. May be repeated for credit.
Prerequisites: None.
Restrictions: Sophomore standing and consent required.
Usually offered: Annually.
Semester credits: 2-4.
