

GENDER STUDIES

Director: TBD

Administrative Coordinator: Lisa Wilson

Lewis & Clark's Gender Studies Program has received national recognition. Begun in 1985, the program was the first of its kind in the country. It offers an interdisciplinary minor, identifies resources, gathers information, sponsors an annual symposium, and serves as a catalyst for change.

In keeping with Lewis & Clark's commitment to gender issues and gender balance, gender studies is integrated into the curriculum. Program faculty members are housed in departments across the campus, and students combine the minor with widely varying majors.

The Minor Program

The interdisciplinary minor in gender studies examines the relationship between gender and social inequality, explores the construction of gender and sexuality, and analyzes the variations in gender systems that have occurred across cultures and over time. It illuminates the images of femininity and masculinity that shape cultural representations and explores gender through artistic expression. Courses take gender as a subject of focus and investigate how gender interacts with race, class, and culture. Lewis & Clark's internationalized curriculum and overseas study programs make it possible for students to examine the intersections of gender, race, and class in a variety of cultures. Finally, the minor engages students in the political and philosophical exploration of strategies for transforming coercive and unequal gender systems and enhancing individual choice and our common humanity.

Courses

GEND 200 Gender and Sexuality in U.S. Society

Content: Interdisciplinary exploration of gender and sexuality in connection with race, class, and ethnicity in the United States. Investigation of social and cultural ideas about difference and equality in the past and present. Materials include literature, film, memoir, poetry, feminist philosophy, political tracts, and queer theory, as well as classic and recent scholarly work in history, sociology, economics, communication, psychology, and other fields. Topics may include mass media and consumer culture, work, law and social policy, family, political activism and social movements, sexuality and the body, public health, medical research, violence, and theories of privilege and oppression. Prerequisites: None. Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester. Semester credits: 4.

GEND 231 Genders and Sexualities in Global Perspective

Content: Gender as it has been socially, culturally, and historically constituted in different times and places. Theoretical developments in the anthropology of gender. Cross-cultural exploration using examples from a wide range of societies, past and present. The relationship between cultural definitions of gender and the social experience of women, men, and alternative gender roles, such as the Native American two-spirits, the hijra of India, and global perspectives on contemporary transgender experiences.

Prerequisites: SOAN 100 or SOAN 110.

Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.

Semester credits: 4.

GEND 299 Independent Study

Content: Independent study topic to be arranged with instructor.

Prerequisites: None.

Restrictions: Sophomore standing and consent required.

Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.

Semester credits: 1-4.

GEND 300 Gender and Aesthetic Expression

Content: An exploration of ways gender informs the theory, history, and creation of literature and art. The role gender norms and constructs play in establishing, reproducing, or contesting aesthetic values, traditions, and hierarchies; feminist perspectives on subjects such as the gaze, the self-portrait, autobiography, and costume; gender and its relationship to theories of beauty, taste, and the body. Materials may be drawn from literature, art, film, cultural studies, art history, theatre, dance, and queer studies. Emphasis on an interdisciplinary topic to be chosen by the professor. Recent topics have included 20th-century experimentation in novels, films, and photography; the Victorian crisis in gender roles from the sensation heroine and Pre-Raphaelitism to the dandy; gender and self as artistic and theoretical constructs from the Enlightenment to the present.

Prerequisites: One course in humanities or arts.

Restrictions: Junior standing required.

Usually offered: Annually, spring semester.

Semester credits: 4.

GEND 345 Gender Studies Symposium Chair

Content: Student chairs perform substantive analytic work related to this interdisciplinary field of study, conducting extensive research to explore speakers, develop panels, identify important issues, and develop the program of events. Working closely with each other, the planning committee, and the faculty director, chairs also develop leadership and professional responsibilities. Preference given to minors in gender studies, but students with relevant coursework or other experience will be considered. Spring registration limited to those students who have completed GEND 345 in the fall of the same academic year.

Prerequisites: None.

Restrictions: Junior standing. Requires permission of instructor after completion of application and interview.

Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.

Semester credits: 2.

GEND 440 Feminist Theory

Content: Advanced course exploring concepts and debates that have animated feminist and queer theorists from a range of political traditions, disciplinary perspectives, and philosophical approaches (such as existentialism, Marxism, liberalism, poststructuralism, and postcolonialism). Readings examine topics such as patriarchy, capitalism, labor, family, the state, the body, and identity in exploring how ideas about gender, sex, and sexuality have been produced and transformed.

Prerequisites: One course in gender studies.

Restrictions: Junior standing required.

Usually offered: Annually, fall semester.

Semester credits: 4.

GEND 444 Practicum

Content: Development and execution of extensive projects relating to gender issues in organizational settings. Placement in community-based social and educational agencies concerned with gender-related problems, such as employment discrimination, rape, sexual harassment and abuse, reproductive rights, freedom of sexual identity, the law and public policy, political organization. Credit-no credit. May be repeated, but no more than 4 credits of GEND 444 or GEND 445 may be applied to the minor.

Prerequisites: One Gender Studies course.

Restrictions: Declared Gender Studies minor. Sophomore standing and consent of program director and faculty sponsor required.

Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.

Semester credits: 1-4.

GEND 445 Gender Theory and Praxis

Content: This advanced seminar juxtaposes contemporary feminist theory with research methods, focusing on collaborative ethnography, participatory action research, historical/comparative methods, and discourse analysis. Students will complete semester-long field research culminating in an analytical research paper and final presentation.

Prerequisites: Two gender studies courses.

Restrictions: Junior standing required.

Usually offered: Alternate Years, fall semester.

Semester credits: 4.

GEND 499 Independent Study

Content: Independent, student-designed research project supervised by a faculty member with expertise in the topic or methodology of the project. May be repeated for credit.

Prerequisites: None.

Restrictions: Declared Gender Studies minor. Junior standing and consent of program director and faculty sponsor required.

Usually offered: Annually, fall and spring semester.

Semester credits: 1-4.
